SPRINGFIELD - Work has begun renovating the undergraduate admissions offices at American International College, part of $2.5 million worth of construction planned for the school this summer, according to the college.

Included in the plan at AIC is replacement of seven roofs, major HVAC upgrades for the dining commons and Schwartz Campus Center, as well as complete renovation of both the undergraduate and graduate admissions offices.

Also scheduled for work this summer is the first phase of a renovation to the Schwartz Campus Center, specifically the campus center auditorium and reception area, and a complete renovation of the campus police facility.

Smaller jobs include a new scoreboard at our athletic complex, a new fire alarm system in Hines Hall, painting of the campus common spaces, and improvements to the campus hardscape and landscape.
